

Crash Course U.S. Government - Day 7

Word Bank

concurrent

exclusive

federal

federalism

state

1. Use the word bank to complete the sentences below.

Under _____, powers are divided between national, state, and local governments. Some powers only belong to one level of government. These are called _____ powers. Some powers are shared between more than one level of government. These are called _____ powers. Only the _____ government has the power to coin money, declare war, and conduct foreign affairs. Only the _____ government has the power to conduct elections, establish local government, and ratify Constitutional amendments. Both state and federal governments can create laws and collect taxes.

2. What is the difference between the “layer cake” model of federalism and the “marble cake” model of federalism?
